3P human resource management

Live stream is available for Shanghai sessions

To survive and develop in modern society full of fierce competition, it is vital to promote the concept and mindset of human resource management. As HR professionals, we desperately need to integrate all aspects of human resource management, build human resource knowledge framework, analyze business needs, and provide systematic human resource solutions. We also need to understand the basic theories and tools of human resource modules such as position management, competency management and performance management, as well as the connection with compensation management. We need to learn to solve common issues of position management such as position setting, analysis, evaluation, and career paths; learn how to establish valuate and apply competency models; know how to execute strategies and promote employee capabilities through four periods of performance management. The last but not the least, we need to support business strategy by building an effective human resource management structure with a comprehensive understanding of this field.

Mercer's two-day workshop will help participants master Mercer's methodology on human resource management comprehensively and leverage systematic human resource management to support organization's business strategy, mission, and objectives.
